M.B.A. with a concentration in Supply Chain Management

The NSU Supply Chain Management program is a comprehensive educational experience that familiarizes students with supply chain concepts for both manufacturing and service supply chains, including health care. Central to the program is the concept of business process transformation within an extended supply chain including how to locate, source, transport, and convert inventory into a finished good or service. The use of technology is an integral component of the concentration, including critical information systems and data management concepts, including supply chain analytics. Multiple courses include experiential learning components that allow the application of theory in practice, including the use of SAP ERP to execute critical business processes. Students engage while addressing industrial supply chain issues and formulating alternatives and recommending solutions.

By enrolling in the M.B. A. in Supply Chain Management program, you will learn about domestic supplier relationships and the complications of sourcing products and services internationally. Graduates will be able make immediate contributions to the management and decision-making processes in their organization's supply chain activities. The Supply Chain Management program provides foundational knowledge that prepares students for internationally recognized certifications including APICS' Certified Supply Chain Professional, ISM'S Certified Professional in Supply Management and PMI's Certified Associate in Project Management or Project Management Professional.
